VOLUME 24 JANESVILLE, WISCONSIN, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 21, 1880. (Published Every Evening Except Sunday, at $7 a Year.) NUMBER 194

To vote as you shot during the war, is to vote for Garfield. This is the only way the country can be saved from misfortune.

There is no system of arithmetic to be found by the Democrats which will give 185 votes for Hancock. That is what worries them.

For a little more than a week we have not heard anything about Hancock's cabinet. How things have changed since the 12th of October.

When the National Democratic committee meets on the 24th, what will be the result? What will the Democrats do?

The cold blasts of October coming from the direction of Ohio and Indiana, have taken the peace-strut out of the Democratic party. They can't raise a feather.

It bothers the Democrats a good deal to reflect that the Republican majority will be so large in November that the Democratic House will have nothing to do in deciding who is elected.

It must be conceded that the Democratic party in the North is in a bad way, and in a pitiful strait, for as far as its red and rolling eye can reach, there is only a wild and a Republican waste of States.

They New York Sun, Democratic, says Hancock should return his quill to the original goose, and stop writing letters. Will the Democrats let Hancock alone, his letters are good campaign documents for the Republicans.

Gabe Bonck has been a vacancy in Congress for nearly four years, at last realizes the fact that he must go. For the next term, the people of the Sixth district, want brains and industry instead of brass buttons and sloth.

The storm which prevailed on Lake Michigan last week was the severest known for more than twenty years. The sea was remarkably heavy, and the loss to the shipping will reach hundreds of thousands of dollars, besides many lives.

Why do not more of the Democratic papers copy Hancock's last letter on the tariff? Why do they treat it so gingerly? The Republicans have made good use of it, but strangely, the Democrats seem to dread it as much as they would handling hot iron.

Mr. Ed. Coe, of the Whitewater Register, suggests the name of Congressman Williams, of this city, for Speaker of the next House of Representatives. A Republican Speaker will be elected, and Wisconsin would be proud to see Mr. Williams occupy that important position.

There is no more use of Hancock making a fool of himself writing letters, and Barnum need not invest in any more mules or steel rails, as the whole controversy is settled. The chairman of the Democratic State committee of Wisconsin, says Hancock will be elected. Of course this ends the whole matter.

The joint discussion between ex-Governor Washburn and Colonel Vilas, will take place at the Assembly chamber, Madison, on Tuesday evening, October 26th. Mr. Washburn once challenged Doolittle, and discussed political issues with him, and did it successfully, and there is no fear that he cannot hold his own with Colonel Vilas.

Stephen A. Douglas, Jr., and Hon. R. S. Tullih, of Chicago, will speak in this city on Monday evening next. The very name of Douglas should fill the Opera house to overflowing. His father was one of the greatest political leaders of his day, and his name will go down in history as one of the ablest and most patriotic of American statesmen. Let the Republicans turn out to hear the son of the great Douglas.

Misfortunes never come singly. This is a universal saying, and it was never more applicable than to the Democratic party this year. In the Second district in this State, the Democrats thought to colonize a lot of Democratic voters and thus secure the election of Gregory to Congress. These plans have been knocked to the wind; and now comes the fact against which the party stumbles, that Mr. Gregory was a knownothing away back in 1856, and was a candidate for Congress on that ticket. He was then beaten by 2,000, which will be about the majority against him this year.

The voters of Porter, in this county, are anxious to know something of the politics of Mr. John Dawe, of that town. Last year he ran on the Republican ticket for supervisor, and this year he is running on the Democratic ticket for county treasurer. The question is what is John Dawe now—a Republican or a Democrat? Has he changed or has the Democrats changed, or who has changed? If Mr. Dawe will explain his position to the Porter voters, he will be doing them a good service. There is a feeling in Porter that John Dawe can't ride two horses at one time when each is going the opposite direction.

A FINAL SETTLEMENT OF THE WHOLE QUESTION.

Chairman Parkinson, of the Madison Democrat, has ventured once more to write an address, or a circular, to the Wisconsin Democrats. To be sure, part of it was stolen from the Indiana address, which makes it appear ridiculous in this State, but Parkinson had to say something, and therefore he had to borrow what he did say.

There is something of supreme importance in this Democratic address to that class of Democrats who were so anxious to bet on the general result before the October elections. General Parkinson has done a great service to the betting portion of his party, having given them an opportunity to make their thousands in two weeks. For a while the Democratic betters in Janesville were bold and aggressive and walked the streets with a sort of a conquering air, and had their pocket books well freighted with greenbacks in case a Republican made a proposition to bet on the general result. But since the little political manoeuvre in Ohio and Indiana, these Democrats have abandoned the streets. We see no more of them. They have gone to some secluded spot for relief and meditation. They have closed their pocket books. They are disappointed, and have lost confidence.

These men can now issue from their seclusion and bask in the sunlight of the broad intelligence of the chairman of the Democratic State committee of Wisconsin. They can once more walk the streets of Janesville with as much importance and defiance as when they had "carried every State in the North" for Hancock.

They can fill their pocket books, and march out on the streets for Republican victims. Chairman Parkinson's superhuman power to look beyond the 21st of November and tell exactly how this great political struggle is going to end, will amaze the country, and should be the means of Democratic making "big money" for the next two weeks. He makes the important announcement that New York, New Jersey, and Connecticut, will cast their electoral votes for Hancock. He also gives notice to the country that Maine will bury the Garfield electors out of sight. This is more than enough to elect Hancock and should make many Democrats rich by securing their bets, but General Parkinson does not stop here. Like Alexander of old, he is bound to make a clean sweep of all before him, and he tells the world that Pennsylvania, Illinois, New Hampshire, California, and Nevada, will go for Hancock. Why the General should have omitted Wisconsin from the list of Hancock States is difficult to comprehend, when, politically, he has the State under his thumb. Undoubtedly this was an oversight, or a blunder on the part of one of the compositors in the Democratic office.

This remarkable gift to foretell political events, which General Parkinson displays in every campaign, is of incalculable benefit to his party. It makes the party confident and hopeful, and gives the Democrats an opportunity to beat the Republicans out of a good many thousands of dollars.

But sometimes the Democrats don't like to bet too much on Parkinson's ability to prophesy. He said, for instance, that Indiana would go 15,000 Democratic, and therefore the party from Maine to California, bet on Parkinson, and the Republicans of Janesville will never forget the sorry looking faces the Democrats carried with them the morning after the election. It was too bad, but Parkinson did it. Then Parkinson had Cothran nominated for the supreme bench of the State, and promised the Democrats that he would be triumphantly elected, but instead of that he was "triumphantly" defeated by 28,000 majority. Then a year ago this week, the General issued a private circular to the Wisconsin Democrats, in which he said the Democrats were superb in spirit, overflowing with enthusiasm, powerfully energetic, irresistibly strong, and all that, while the Republicans were dispirited, disorganized, and apathetic. This "private" circular, so full of hope to the Democrats, found its way into the Gazette, and Governor Smith again walked into the executive office with 26,000 majority in his pocket.

These little mistakes that Chairman Parkinson may seem to have made, should not discourage the betting portion of the Democratic party. With New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Pennsylvania, New Hampshire, California, and Nevada, and for the Democrats, they have a good thing. The quicker General Parkinson's letter is sent East the better for the Democrats there are very much discouraged and have no hope of electing Hancock. The chairman is one of the greatest political prophets of the time, but the people don't seem to know it.

Boston, Oct. 20.—Mrs. Lydia Maria Child, the well-known authoress, died this morning at Wayland, Mass., aged 78.

JUDGE TOURGEE.

An Immense Republican Rally at Belmont.

Belmont, Oct. 20.—Judge A. W. Tourgee, of North Carolina, spoke here to-night to an immense audience, hundreds being unable to get into the Opera house. A torchlight procession paraded the principal streets before the meeting, and Republican enthusiasm is at a fever heat. The Judge's address lasted two hours, and was listened to with deep interest. He went to the foundation of things, contrasting the social, educational, and political conditions of the North and the South, and stating the causes of the contrast in a most clear and logical way. The Judge goes from here to Grand Rapids, and thence to New York State.

NEW YORK.

Another Leading Democratic Business Man Joins the Republicans.

New York, Oct. 20.—H. W. Johnson, manager of the estate of Garner & Co., representing several millions of dollars, and including the largest calico print works in the United States, if not in the world, has lately come over to the Republican party from the Democrats, and is now an active worker for Garfield and Arthur. A reporter called upon Mr. Johnson to-day, and asked him his reasons for changing his party. "My reasons for changing my party are business reasons principally," said he. "I could not help recognizing the fact that the country was in a most prosperous condition, and also that any change in administration was not only unnecessary, but might prove very disastrous to all mercantile and manufacturing interests. Therefore, I felt that my duty, as well as my interest, demanded that I should identify myself with and support the party I believed would best administer affairs for the next four years. I had been a Democrat all my life before this change."

"How do the workmen stand, politically, in your various mills?"

"What is something I cannot tell you. There are in all our different mills between 5,000 and 7,000 hands, but I have not gone among them to investigate their politics. I believe that the workmen will consider the questions of the two parties as they are plainly presented to them, and will vote in accordance with their own ideas of their best interests."

Business men of this section of the country are emphatic in their protestations against a change in administration. Further investigations as to the effect of all the leading business men state that the success of their various enterprises is more dependent upon the election than upon any other circumstance.

THE BARL IN WISCONSIN.

The Modest Demands of the Chairman of the Democratic Committee.

MADISON, Oct. 20.—A. C. Parkinson, chairman of the Democratic State central committee, has issued a secret circular, in which he calls upon every delegate to the last State convention for a contribution of $5 to the general election fund. He says: "We have strong hopes of carrying this State for Hancock and English. We need money for the prosecution of the campaign." Mr. Parkinson is certainly very reasonable in his demands upon the galvanized Democracy for the sines of war, and it is easy to cipher out the exact amount of money he will receive if his modest request is complied with. A full convention upon the present basis consists of 200 delegates, and if they all fork over, Parkinson will receive $1,000. Not an extravagant outlay in order to carry a strong Republican State for Hancock. It is rumored that Chairman Parkinson's circular was issued before the land-slide in Indiana on Tuesday last, and that it will issue another in a few days, containing this latest postscript: "Later—You need not send the money. It is of no use."

WHITEWATER.

Congressman Williams Address at Whitewater.

WHITEWATER, Oct. 19.—The Republican club held its first of the campaign meetings last evening. The Hon. C. G. Williams addressed the audience which was large and enthusiastic. Now our Republicans begin to think of the work they must do, and the splendid turnout of voters last night shows that they have never lacked interest in the issues of the campaign. Mr. Williams is a great favorite here, and made one of his best speeches. Whitewater Republicans are striking for 500 majority for Garfield and Arthur.

FATAL EXPLOSION.

Terrific Boiler Explosion and Loss of Life in an Indiana Distillery.

Terre Haute, Ind., Oct. 20.—At 3 o'clock this afternoon occurred the most frightful boiler explosion that has ever taken place in this city. The shock was terrific, and was felt all over the whole city. An alarm of fire was quickly turned out. Within a few minutes the department and hundreds of people hastened to the distillery of Cox & Fairbanks, on South Water street. It was soon ascertained that from some unaccountable reason three of the large boilers had burst, and buried many of the workmen in the ruins. The exact number of the killed cannot at this time be given, as some more bodies are said to be in the debris. The following bodies have been recovered, some of them in a fearfully mangled condition: John Brooks, Joseph Henry, Henry Day, William Egan, Henry Dink, Mike Kelly, and a stranger from Cincinnati, whose name is unknown.

The engineer Frank Stanley, has died since he was taken out; also William Kirtly.

Eight or ten of the employees are wounded, some dangerously. Part of the building is demolished. A large piece of one of the boilers fell into the cattle pen and killed two steers. Another piece knocked out the end of the malt house, 600 yards away.

These boilers had been examined Sunday by an inspector, and pronounced safe.

ROASTED TO DEATH.

Five Women Burned to Death in Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 20.—A fire resulting in the loss of five lives occurred about 11 o'clock to-day in the shoddy-factory of Benjamin Hey, corner of Second and Broadway. The fire caught from greased rags falling upon the bales, and before the engines could be brought to the spot the whole building, owing to the inflammable character of its contents, was in flames. Twenty girls and women, under the supervision of Mary Foren, the forewoman of the sorting department, were at work in the sorting and storage rooms on the third floor. These women knew nothing of the presence of the fire until one of them saw smoke coming through the cracks in the floors. She at once called "Fire!" and started for the staircase in the storage-room. Most of the women were in the storage room on the third floor, and when they saw the fire they fled to the staircase. The women were crowded together, and when they reached the staircase they found their escape cut off. The unfortunate woman was Mrs. Rachel Doughty, 51 East Third street, 55 years old, body burned to a crisp, widow and four children.

Margaret Wells, 61 years old, Seventh and North streets, no relatives known; upper portion of the body burned to a crisp.

Mrs. Mary Syron, 49 years old, 43 York street; five children (infants included); upper portion of the body except face burned.

Mrs. Catherine Jackson, Front and Broadway, 55 years old, widow, supporting blind daughter.

Miss Mrs. Kerwin, 40 years, 170 Locke street, only one day, and nothing known about her family or whether married or single.

An Extraordinary Will.

In these days when it is popularly supposed that a man's will may be set aside for almost any eccentricity which he can be shown to have possessed during his life, and when popular supposition is supported by many verdicts, and by not a few courts, the following singular case is interesting as showing how differently things were managed in the year 1827. It is safe to say, that such a will as that of Mason Lee, made and executed by such an individual, would not, in the year 1880, be permitted to stand.

Here is the will:

"An estate of $50,000 was left to the states of Tennessee and North Carolina, his heirs-at-law, and his two illegitimate sons being disinherited. No part of his estate, but will especially enjoined, should be 'in anywise inherited by any of my relatives while wood grows or water runs.' His executors, one of whom was a Baptist preacher, were empowered to defend the will 'so long as there is money left to feed the best lawyer in Charleston.' Here is the testator. A man who believed in witchcraft; who believed that an influence could be exerted on his body and mind from a distance; that a woman was bewitched by the teeth, and in order to dislodge them, he had fourteen drawn. He made his own clothes; his pantaloons are like petticoats; his coat was a blanket with a hole cut in it. He had fifteen swords of great size, one of which he carried constantly. He slept in the day time, but kept awake at night. He believed he had the devil nailed up in his fireplace. His home was a hovel adjoining a pig-stye. He was easily alarmed; the ticking of a clock frightened him. He cut off the tails of his cattle, giving as a reason that they made the cattle nervous, and if their tails were cut off they would get fat; he also cut off the ears of his horses and mules. A reason which he gave for not providing for one of his sons was that he was his twin brother. The will of this extraordinary person being contested on the ground of insanity, was finally sustained by a jury and on appeal, by the Supreme Court.

"Innocents Abroad."

From the Boston Transcript.

Elisha Bliss, Jr., president of the American Publishing Company, Hartford, who died a few days ago, was the first publisher that gave favorable consideration to Mark Twain's "Innocents Abroad," and caused it to be issued. Notwithstanding the rolling satire, the laughter-provoking character and the obviously popular elements of the "Innocents," its author had the greatest difficulty in getting it before the public. He had gained considerable reputation as a humorist by his little volume containing the "Jumping Frog" and other sketches, before setting out on his travels in the Quaker City, and after he had returned and prepared his copy he had naturally very little doubt of its prompt acceptance. He was doomed to continue and bitter disappointment. He offered the manuscript to one publisher after another in New York, but not one would take the risk of putting it in book form. Then he sent it to Boston with the same result, and finally to Philadelphia, only to be again rebuffed. By this time he was as may be inferred, in no very amiable mood. He confessed that literary vanity had been sorely wounded, and he was so disgusted with his work that he was ready to throw it in the fire. Having offered it to the leading publishers of three of the principal cities in the Union to no purpose, it was not strange that he was troubled and hurt. While in this irritated, self-dissatisfied mood, he met the late Albert D. Richardson, to whom he handed the manuscript to see if it was so irredeemably bad. Richardson pronounced it very clever, full of the extravagant drollery which the American people relish, and expressed his astonishment that any publisher of intelligence and experience should have declined it. "You can't be any more astonished than I am," remarked Clemens dryly. "Those publishers have astonished as much content out of me as a long siege of sea sickness." Richardson, who had published several books through the American Company, said that he was going to Hartford, that he would take the manuscript with him and that he was sure the book would be glad to take it. He put it into the hands of Bliss, then secretary, who was immensely pleased with it. But some of the other officers and the Directors were adverse, and made so many objections that finally declared that they would publish it on his own personal account. They came round when they saw he was entirely in earnest, and afterward pretended they favored the book from the start. The extraordinary success of the "Innocents Abroad" is well known. The sale to date, including printed editions, is said to have reached fully 200,000 copies. The American Company probably cleared from $60,000 to $70,000 by its publication.

Mrs. W. N. Palmer, 149 Morgan street, Buffalo, N. Y., writes: My child was taken Feb. 1st with Croup in its severest form and Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil he used in the only remedy at hand. I began giving it according to directions and found it gave immediate relief. I gave three (3) doses and the child rested well the remainder of the night. I have used it in my family for some time with complete success.

with the black beard stood on the threshold—stood there, with both arms stretched toward her, until she turned, and, looking on him, cried, "William! oh, my William!" and fell upon his bosom.

At first I had imagined that the black-bearded gentleman was about to devour Miss Linda, or carry her away to his enchanted castle; but when she called him William, the truth dawned upon my mind, and I listened quietly, when, some moments afterward, he knelt beside her and spoke thus:

"I have been near you many weeks, my darling—I have watched you, to and fro from the school; and, though I never dreamed you could still love me, I have loved you every moment since we parted. When I left you I hoped to return to you soon, happy and prosperous, but, baffled and disappointed, I could not bear to bring my poverty and grief for you to share, and I bated my eyes with the world, weary and broken-hearted, until I began to doubt all truth and goodness, and believed that no woman could welcome back a toil-worn, beggared man, as she would one who was glad and prosperous.

I saw her arm steal about his neck, and her lips touch his cheek, and he went away again.

"Better days dawned upon me, and I came back again, vowing you still, to woo and to win you, if you could forgive my long and shameful silence. The first news I heard, darling, was that you were betrothed to another, and though it almost broke my heart, I vowed that if this were true I would not mar your new-found happiness by bringing back the memory of the past. Had you loved me, Linda, you never should have known that Will Brace dwelt among living men, although he would have prayed for your happiness while he had a heart to pray with, and blessed you until his lips were dumb forever."

There was another pause, and I could hear her sob.

"To-day, Linda, I followed my rival, as I thought him, to this door," he said, the words he spoke, and I also heard your answer. I learned, my angel, that you had forgiven me, that you were still true to the wanderer whose only merit was that he loved you fondly, and no words can tell you the ecstasy of that moment, the balm that knowledge poured upon my wounded heart. Will you be my wife still, Linda? Will you share the little that I have of wealth, and let me love a Linda, to you never shall have known that Will Brace dwelt among living men, although he would have prayed for your happiness while he had a heart to pray with, and blessed you until his lips were dumb forever."

She did not speak, but her head sunk lower still, and her white arms twined themselves tenderly about the bronzed neck of the man with the black beard.

A week later the village paper reported the marriage of Miss Linda Harrington and Mr. William Bruce, and our school was without a mistress.—N. Y. Sunday Times.

ALBION, Iowa, May 26, 1880.
TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:
I take pleasure in making the following statement: I have been afflicted with a disease of the kidneys for the past two years and have tried numerous remedies with only partial and temporary relief: Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure was recommended to me and after taking it the pain and distress left me and I am to-day feeling strong and well. I am perfectly satisfied that Warner's Safe Remedies are the medicines needed and can cheerfully commend them to others.
G. W. STAMM.
I hereby certify that I have seen a practicing physician for twenty-seven years and for many chronic cases in my practice do recommend Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure. It was upon my advice that G. W. Stamm, the editor obtained this valuable remedy.

GEO. D. ROWELL & CO'S
SELECT LIST OF LOCAL NEWSPAPERS.

An advertiser who sends upwards of $50.00 a year, and who has not less than $25.00 of it in his list, writes: "Your select Local List paid for me better last year than all the other advertising I did."

IT IS NOT A CO-OPERATIVE LIST.
IT IS AN HONEST LIST.

The circulation is exactly what the papers are, and the number of a paper is printed in full face of it. It is in every instance correct. When printed in CAPITALS it is the only paper in the place. The list gives the population of every town and the circulation of every paper.

The rates charged for advertising are barely adequate to the publishers' schedule. The price of a single State ranges from $2.50 to $5.00, and for the entire one month in the entire country. The regular rates of the papers for the same space and time are $2.50 per line. The list includes 252 newspapers of which 172 are classified as A, B, C, D, E, F, G, H, I, J, K, L, M, N, O, P, Q, R, S, T, U, V, W, X, Y, Z, and 75 are classified in 25 different classes and towns of which 35 are State Capitals, 34 are places of over 100,000 population, and 100 are State Capitals.

liked by all the villagers. Hortense's kindness to the poor of all the district has endeared her name in grateful remembrance there, and even the stern republicans of Switzerland, who have sympathy for an unfortunate Queen, never could tire telling of the incidents of his boyhood that pointed to the coming man. What a swimmer he was! what a horseman! what a wrestler! Of his horsemanship it is maintained he had not an equal anywhere. It was a habit of his never to mount a horse by the use of stirrup, but to run and spring over the crupper and into the saddle at a bound.

Louis Napoleon visited Arenberg when he became Emperor, and twenty thousand people came to bid him welcome. As a young man he had been a captain of militia sharpshooters here, and president of the village school board. These bodies joined officially in the greeting. There were several coaches and four drawn up at the station for the Emperor and his staff to ride in. What was the astonishment and joy to see Napoleon jump into the one-horse wagon of a friend that happened to be there, and with him head the great procession through Constance! How the people shouted and clapped hands at the democratic Emperor!

Hortense, after enduring several years with a dreadful cancer, ended her eventful life here in 1871. She died in the little upper east room. The stranger going in there now will be impressed to see everything just as she left it. There is the bed on which she died, and near it is the camp bedstead which her son the Emperor had at Sedan. There, too, is her harp, as well as the harp of Josephine.

Down stairs there are five rooms filled with remembrances of the Napoleon family. On a little table in the reception-room is the gilt clock used by Napoleon on the island of St. Helena. In other rooms are good paintings and statues made from life of Napoleon the First, Hortense, her mother Josephine, and her brother Prince Eugene; also the furniture presented to Hortense by the city of Paris at the time of her marriage to Napoleon's brother. There, too, is a bust of Napoleon the Third, taken from a cast of his face after death.

The Empress Eugenie repurchased this place (it had been sold after the death of Hortense), and presented it to the Emperor. It was lately the summer residence of herself and the young Prince Louis.

Over the hills from Reichenau, and in another arm of the lake, lies the pretty island of Marais, with its charming gardens reaching down to the blue waters. Real royalty dwells here, for it is the property of the Grand Duke of Baden; and his father-in-law, the Emperor of Germany, often spends his summer days in this lovely retreat. In fact, the Kings and Princes of Europe have managed to secure most of the rare spots around the lower end of Lake Constance. — H. M. Myers, in Harper's Magazine for April.

Dr. STEPHAN, the chief of the German Postal and Telegraph Department, gave a novel ball in Vienna lately. All the servants were dressed in the costume of postillions. In the course of the festivities a post-wagon, fully equipped with harness and driver, was driven into the dancing saloon. The guests danced around a telegraph-pole adorned with many-colored ribbons. Banners containing hop-bugs were distributed among them from letter-boxes exactly like those upon the Berlin street-corners. Werner Siemens, the inventor, who is called the German Edison, provided for the occasion a novel electrical light-house. The dancers were given keys to the door of the towers, some of which had the magic quality of causing the light to send forth a brilliant flame. The couples possessing the right keys walked in the glow of the sudden illumination, but those who could not make the tower respond were obliged to retire from the floor amid the amusement of the spectators. At one o'clock a fanfare of postillions' horns gave the signal for supper. — N. Y. Tribune.
